North Vietnam Rejects Any Changes In Cease-Fire Plan

PARIS (AP) — A new round of secret Vietnam peace negotiations was imminent today, but North Vietnam in advance rejected any changes in the draft cease-fire agreement worked out by Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho of the North Vietnamese Politburo.

Xuan Thuy, the chief of North Vietnam's delegation in Paris, told the weekly session of the semipublic peace talks: "We resolutely reject all the pretexts put forth by the United States and Saigon to demand modification of the substance of the agreement."

He repeated Hanoi's persistent demand that the United States "immediately sign the agreement."

The chief modification demanded by Saigon, a provision calling for the withdrawal of all North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam, was repeated today by South Vietnam's representative at the session, Nguyen Xuan Phong.

U. S. negotiator William J. Porter said: "Each of us is aware that the restoration of peace in Vietnam is approaching. Each of us is equally well aware of the efforts being made to refine and perfect the accomplishments of the negotiation so that a settlement fair to all will result."

In a brief prepared statement to the meeting, Porter avoided any reference to substantive issues but urged the Communist side to avoid "exaggerated rhetoric and unfounded charges of bad faith."

He declared that "our discussions should be directed toward the goal of peaceful settlement, much nearer than we imagined only a few weeks ago."

Phong told newsmen as he arrived for the meeting that this government regards such a withdrawal and restoration of the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam as "essential elements" of any agreement.

The draft, as outlined by Hanoi and discussed with newsmen by Kissinger, makes no mention of either point. American sources have said that Tho, in his secret meetings in Paris last month with Kissinger, gave him to understand that some North Vietnamese would be withdrawn from the northern part of South Vietnam. But the implication has been that most of Hanoi's forces in the South would stay where they were.

Tho was in Moscow today, en route to Paris from Hanoi, and he and Kissinger were expected to meet in Paris this weekend for what the U. S. presidential adviser has said would be their final round of talks to agree on details and the wording of the agreement.

Argentina Prepares For Peron

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The Argentine capital looks like it's about to be invaded as H-Hour — when Juan Peron returns from exile — gets closer.

Even military jargon is in use. Peronists have dubbed the former dictator's flight home after 17 years of exile "Operation Return."

Peron, 77, is scheduled to arrive at Ezeiza International Airport Friday in a chartered jet, accompanied by 140 followers who flew to Rome to pick him up.

The ruling military junta launched "Operation Dissuasion" to seal off the airport after Peronist leaders predicted a million of their followers would be at the field.

The generals also issued orders creating a one- day holiday, barring private plane flights and chartered bus trips, closing schools and restricting roads to military movement. They assured the public that peace would be maintained.

The first shots were fired Wednesday night, and they were blanks.

A policeman fired into the air to disperse 200 university students gathered on their campus for an assembly on "students' role in the return of Peron."

More than 30,000 soldiers were forming a ring around the airport, and all Buenos Aires police and troops from outlying areas took up positions in and around the capital.

Civilian automobile traffic was restricted. The National Transport Board warned private bus operators that they could provide only regular service and would need authorization for any charter runs or special trips. This barred bus lines from bringing Peronists into Buenos Aires from the provinces or taking them to the airport.

The military government limited the airport welcoming committee to 300, with their names to be supplied in advance.

The General Labor Confederation called a general strike Friday so that its two million members could "go into the street and shout their happiness." The government replied by declaring a holiday and closing the schools and universities today also. It hoped this would head off any sit- ins in schools or factories.

North Vietnam Rejects Any Changes In Cease-Fire Plan

PARIS (AP) — A new round of secret Vietnam peace negotiations was imminent today, but North Vietnam in advance rejected any changes in the draft cease-fire agreement worked out by Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho of the North Vietnamese Politburo.

Xuan Thuy, the chief of North Vietnam's delegation in Paris, told the weekly session of the semipublic peace talks: "We resolutely reject all the pretexts put forth by the United States and Saigon to demand modification of the substance of the agreement."

He repeated Hanoi's persistent demand that the United States "immediately sign the agreement."

The chief modification demanded by Saigon, a provision calling for the withdrawal of all North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam, was repeated today by South Vietnam's representative at the session, Nguyen Xuan Phong.

U. S. negotiator William J. Porter said: "Each of us is aware that the restoration of peace in Vietnam is approaching. Each of us is equally well aware of the efforts being made to refine and perfect the accomplishments of the negotiation so that a settlement fair to all will result."

In a brief prepared statement to the meeting, Porter avoided any reference to substantive issues but urged the Communist side to avoid "exaggerated rhetoric and unfounded charges of bad faith."

He declared that "our discussions should be directed toward the goal of peaceful settlement, much nearer than we imagined only a few weeks ago."

Phong told newsmen as he arrived for the meeting that this government regards such a withdrawal and restoration of the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam as "essential elements" of any agreement.

The draft, as outlined by Hanoi and discussed with newsmen by Kissinger, makes no mention of either point. American sources have said that Tho, in his secret meetings in Paris last month with Kissinger, gave him to understand that some North Vietnamese would be withdrawn from the northern part of South Vietnam. But the implication has been that most of Hanoi's forces in the South would stay where they were.

Tho was in Moscow today, en route to Paris from Hanoi, and he and Kissinger were expected to meet in Paris this weekend for what the U. S. presidential adviser has said would be their final round of talks to agree on details and the wording of the agreement.

The National Transport Board warned private bus operators that they could provide only regular service and would need authorization for any charter runs or special trips. This barred bus lines from bringing Peronists into Buenos Aires from the provinces or taking them to the airport.

The military government limited the airport welcoming committee to 300, with their names to be supplied in advance.

The General Labor Confederation called a general strike Friday so that its two million members could "go into the street and shout their happiness." The government replied by declaring a holiday and closing the schools and universities today also. It hoped this would head off any sit- ins in schools or factories.

Recount Of Shoe Workers Votes Will Be Today

A recount of ballots cast in the polling for president and vice president of Shoe Workers Union 123A of Sikeston will be held at 4 p.m. today in the union hall across from the International shoe factory.

A union official from St. Louis will be on hand to supervise the counting.

A spokesman said nothing was wrong with the original count but that a recount was not held as required by union regulations. The recount was not held because more than one person had counted ballots and the count was identical. The union office in St. Louis, however, ordered the local to obey the regulation.

Murder Charge Filed Against Bridgewater

CORNING, Ark. (AP) — A first degree murder charge was lodged Wednesday against Teddy Bridgewater, 15, of Corning in the shooting death Tuesday night of Tammy Cates, 13, of Corning.

Bridgewater was arrested in Missouri several hours after the shooting. He waived extradition and was being held at the Clay County Jail here.

The girl was one of six teenagers in a station wagon parked on a city street before a residence when a shotgun blast ripped into the car. Police said no motive has been established for the shooting.

Man Knifed By Unknown Assailant

HORNERSVILLE — A 28-year-old Hornersville man was being treated in the intensive care unit of the Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett Wednesday with knife wounds to the left rib cage.

Dunklin County Deputy Sheriff Radford Raines said Bob Bridges was stabbed around 3 p.m. Tuesday but quoted Bridges as saying he could not idenitfy his assailant.

Raines said Bridges, along with his father, Harold Bridges, and brother Rick, were working on a house about two miles west of Cotton Plant when three men came up.

The elder Bridges told Raines his son was on the other side of the house and the three men went around to talk to him. The elder Bridges said a few minutes later his son came around and told him to take him to a doctor because he had been stabbed. Both men said they could not identify any of the three men.

Investigation is continuing.

TO GIVE THANKS 351 YEARS
AFTER THAT FIRST OCCASION

Our harvest being gotten in, our governor sent four men on fowling, that so we might after a more special manner rejoice together, after we had gathered the fruit of our labors. They four in one day killed as much fowl as, with a little help beside, served the company almost a week. At which time ... many of the Indians coming among us ... with whom for three days we entertained and feasted.

Thus wrote the Pilgrim, Edward Winslow, of that first Thanksgiving Day in 1621. The little settlement on the edge of North America was fresh from a continent torn by political strife and religious hatred, and their own England soon would be embroiled in a civil war of religious overtones along with the struggle between king and Parliament.

The colonies and later the United States would escape none of the sorrows that infected the Old World, for men carry the viruses of their self-made tribulations wherever they go. Just as they take with them the qualities of hope, generosity, compassion and faith.

On the new continent these elements of the human equation, both the greedy and the sublime, would flourish at a fantastic rate of acceleration. Along with slavery would come the will to end it in the midst of a national cataclysm. The enormous natural resources would be used for the benefit of millions, but the land would be stripped and exploited unmercifully. (If the Indians could have known what lay ahead, they would have declined that Thanksgiving invitation.) The ugly characteristics of prejudice, distrust, selfishness and unreasoning fear would not vanish in the New World, and sometimes they would be amplified. But men and women would build and nurture institutions of government, society and religion designed to promote the welfare of all the freedom of the individual.

The political and economic power that arose from the efforts of those Old World voyagers early in the 17th Century is of a magnitude unimaginable to the greatest princes living then. Three hundred and fifty-one years after that first Thanksgiving the wealth and strength of the United States are beyond anything existing in the old nations as they have evolved in modern times.

Yet the essence of the day does not really call for giving thanks for the gross national product. It is, instead, a time to pray that this country can use its strength and wealth in the interests of peace and justice. It is a time to remember those who are gone with a special fondness. It is, as Edward Winslow wrote three and one-half centuries ago, a time for special rejoicing together, and to take new faith that the good in man's dual nature will prevail. The meaning of that first and this latest Thanksgiving remains the same.

"Industrial waste (and my wife's washing machine) foul rivers and lakes, but I refuse to pay higher prices for everything, just to have elaborate treatment plants.

"They say strip-mining defaces the countryside and therefore should be stopped. But don't try raising the price I pay for coal.

"I hate smoke-stack smog, but I won't have one of those nuclear power plants in my city!

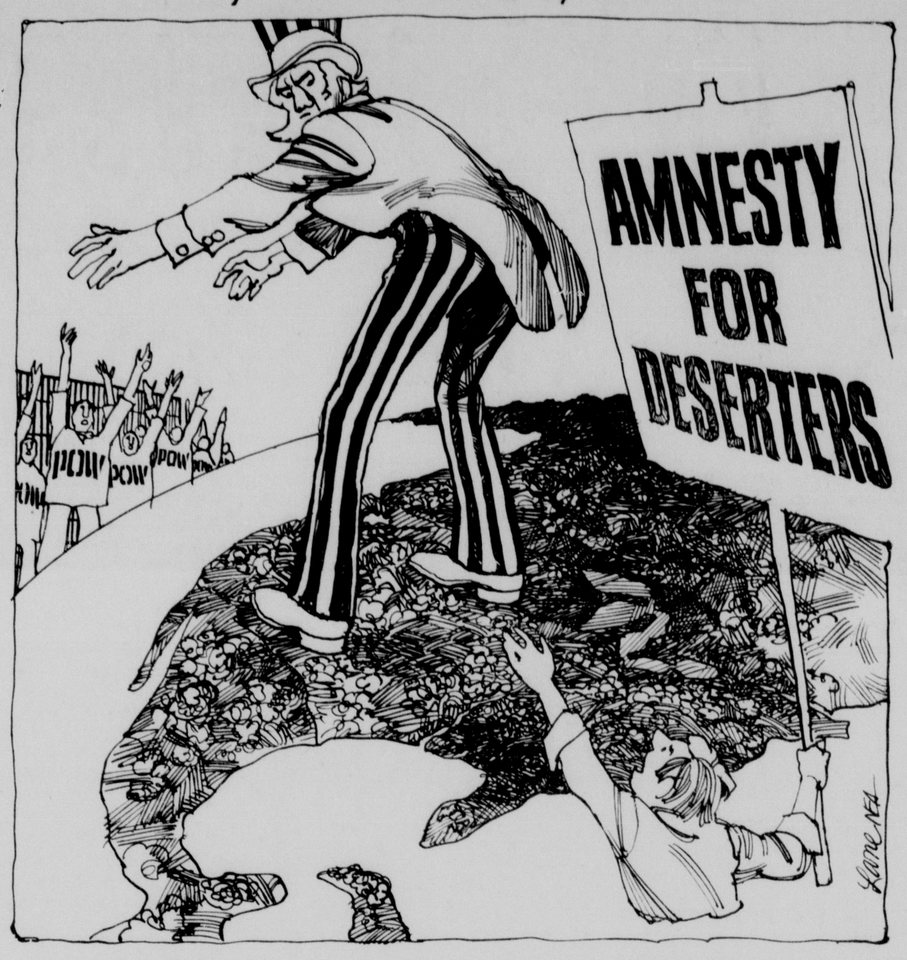

"If they raise the price of my automobile to install some anti-pollution device, I'll get one of those cheaper foreign makes, and let Detroit's jobs go hang.

"Military service? ME? Get a volunteer army — but don't raise my taxes to pay those fellows any civilian pay scale. Haven't they got any patroitism?

"No, sir! Let the government pay for it".

But — who is the government? Why, we taxpayers, of course.

"Hey! Gimme a Hand, Will Ya?"

FINGER POSTS

One day Thomas Edison was called upon to send a message to a young people's gathering, and this is the message he sent:

"Always be interested in whatever you undertake, or may be doing for the moment. Dismiss from your minds everything else but the one thing you are doing at the time, and think only of that thing in all its bearings, and master it. Don't mind the clock, but keep at it, and let nature indicate the necessity of rest. After resting, go to work again with the same interest. The world pays big prices for the man who knows.

"To accomplish things, there must first be an idea that the thing is possible; then the watchword must be to try; and keep on trying with enthusiasm and a thorough belief in your ability to succeed. If you are convinced that a certain thing can be done, never mind what the world says; experiment, and never give up.

"Forget entirely the word disappointment. Failures, so called, are but finger posts pointing out the right direction to those who are willing to learn. So far as I can see, these principles have influenced me in the years that have passed."

Most streets in our American cities run north and south or east and west, and the dwellings are built to face them. Hygienists and exponents of vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin, say this was a boner in planning. Houses built to face northeast, southeast, southwest, or northwest get some direct sunlight on all four sides sometime during the day.

A TICKLER

This clever little story has been in print a number of times, but the details are soon forgotten, and then it becomes new again. The funny thing about it is that if you tell the story to three different people, you are likely to get three different answers:

A man went into a repair shop with an impaired vaccuum cleaner. He waited until the job was finished, and being told that it would cost a dollar, handed the repairman a five- dollar bill. The latter was unable to make the change, so the customer ssid:

"I haven't another cent, and I must take the cleaner back with me. Let me have a dollar and I'll come back for the bill tomorrow."

The repairman consented, took the five- dollar bill, and handed the customer a dollar and the cleaner. The following day the man returned, gave the repairman four dollars and received his five- dollar bill back.

Was this a profitable transaction for the repairman?

CAPTAIN OF THE SHIP

The first days of the sea voyage had been calm. The warm rays of the sun smiled down upon the placid ripples of a peaceful ocean, and at night the soft moon touched the limpid waters with shimmering silver. On board the great transatlantic liner the passengers relaxed and enjoyed life as only those experiencing an ocean voyage can do. All was calm, peaceful, serene.

And then, with little warning, a storm struck; the calm sea was transformed into a raging maelstrom; the wind howled and hissed; the great ship tossed about in the merciless sea as though it had been a plaything. Upon every hand the screaming winds of the tempest lashed with fury, churning the ocean into foam and striking terror into the hearts of passengers aboard the liner. Cowering in their staterooms, fear- smitten and nervous, they were afraid of the peril that surrounded them, for they were so helpless in the merciless hand of the howling storm.

All but one.

In a sheltered recess of the deck which afforded protection from the fury of the storm, a little boy was laying with calm concentration as though unaware that a tempest was battering the ship.

Passengers, gazing out through the portholes of their staterooms, feared for the safety of the little boy, and at length one passenger, deeply concerned, called to the lad above the sound of the howling winds: "Son, aren't you afraid of the storm? Don't you think you should come inside the ship?"

Looking up momentarily, and smiling, the boy replied, "Oh, no, sir, I'm not afraid. You see, my father is the captain of this ship!"

THE CUSTOM of lifting the hat when meeting another person dates back to the time when men wore heavy suits of armor, of which the helmet was an important part. To raise or take off this article of dress was a sign that the one doing so trusted the person present at the time, for taking off the helmet left the head unprotected, and was done only in the presence of friends. From this origin the custom gradually extended to that of removing the hat only when greeting ladies, when in the presence of one's country's flag, at funerals, and when entering churches.

Hidden Problems In Legalized Pot

A growing chorus of prestigious voices is calling for a change in this country's legal posture toward marijuana.

Dr. Bertram S. Brown, director of the National Institute of Mental Health and officially the nation's top psychiatrist, urges that penalties be eased. While deploring the spreading use of marijuana among the very young, he argues that penalties for possession and use of the drug are "much too severe and much out of keeping with knowledge about its harmfulness."

We are still several years away from being able to judge the long-term psychological and physical effects of marijuana use, but almost every study has shown that for everything bad that can be said about pot, worse things can be said about alcohol.

John H. Finlator, retired deputy director of the Bureau of Narcotics andDangerous Drugs, calls the prosecution of marijuana users "just as wrong as hell." He says his opinion was muzzled while he was with the bureau.

The 13-member National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse, appointed by Congress in 1970, is expected to recommend that possession and use of marijuana in the home be made legal. The panel will make its final report in late March.

None of these authorities advocates the complete legalization of marijuana. Yet if recent history in the field of pornography is any guide, it is difficult to see how this can long be avoided once the first step is taken toward acceptance of marijuana.

When courts held that a person had a constitutional right to provate possession of pornographic materials, the next logical argument was that this right was meaningless if he did not also have a constitutional right to obtain such materials. Since the courts have so far failed to face this issue squarely, pornography has virtually become legal by default.

Suppose marijuana were legalized across the board. We could find ourselves with some unforeseen problems, says Cleveland chemist Donald J. Nittskoff, who runs the only federally licensed experimental narcotics laboratory in Ohio.

First, he says, when we talk about making marijuana legal, we should ask ourselves: Legal for whom? Only for adults over 18? Yet, according to a recent report by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, marijuana use has already risen to as high as 90 per cent among some groups of high school students.

Second, the mild marijuana generally obtainable in this country contains only about 1 per cent of THC (tetrahydrocannabinol), the psychoactive constituent . The more potent hashish contains about 5 to 8 per cent.

Nittskoff thinks legalization of marijuana could open the door to increasingly more potent pot as manufacturers competed for sales. Even if THC content were limited by law, an illegal market for the more powerful stuff could be generated.

Alcohol, for instance, is legal and stringently regulated, yet thate is still a moonshine industry (although in this case the object is to avoid taxes).

Nittskoff raises a third point no one else has mentioned. The United States has treaty obligations with other nations for the suppression of the drug traffic. A treaty, ratified by the Senate, is as much the law of the land as a law passed by Congress and signed by the President.

Thus changes in national or state laws regarding marijuana could bring us into conflict with international law to which we are signatories.

The problem of pot, either in its legal or medical aspects, is far from being a simple and straight-forward matter.

TRIAL BY FIRE

Engineer James Halcomb developed a unique "slide-rule computer" that can be used by those familiar with the PERT and CPM concepts of programming. He put it on the market (with complete instructional guides) at $24.50.

Selling by direct mail was successful but response was slow. He was curious as to what might happen if the Pert-O-Graph were exposed to a wider audience. So a mail-order ad was prepared with long copy (8 pt. type) and a coupon. It was placed in Business Week for a one-shot trial. This was a new concept being introduced to an unfamiliar market.

Within a few weeks, the ad pulled in prepaid orders in excess of $20,000. A re-run of the same ad one year later again brought in more, than $20,000 in cash-on-the - line returns. Jim Halcomb says: "The dollar figures speak for themselves.

POLITICAL ANARCHY

It was nine years ago this month that the sniper bullets of a man hidden in a virtually empty building in downtown Dallas ended the life of a relatively young man who had reached the summit of political power. A shocked, bereaved world heard the news on November 22, 1963, that President John F. Kennedy had been murdered. Friend and critic alike mourned his death.

The true story of his murder may or may not have been told. Many feel that a conspiracy was responsible. Whatever the truth of their allegations, it is a matter of record that the shame and disgrace of political violence did not end with the death of President Kennedy. His brother, Senator Robert Kennedy, was later gunned down in Los Angeles and Governor George Wallace recently was shot and critically wounded. All of these odious incidents are a sad commentary on our society.

Political assassinations and assaults are not really new in the history of mankind, but their occurrence in a modern, advanced society is perplexing. A wave of terror struck the leaders of the world around the turn of the century. The anarchists had their origins in the Balkans but their adherents spread to the far corners of the globe and all politicians and government leaders were under great strain. The murder of the Austrian archduke in Serbia triggered World War I.

The politicians of this country like to shake hands with the people and the voters should have a right to see the men and women who will lead them. Only a moral and spiritual awakening will make our political system safe and comfortable again. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON — On any clear day, at any one of a hundred rambling hotels surviving the old baronial Mauve Decade, always with golf courses attached, from Lake Louise to French Lick to Key Biscayne, one can see scores of business leaders, eagerly but futilely eyeing the links.

They usually are the chief executives of the nation's major corporations. They are from the most rarified of executive suites. And they fly to these dawn-to-dusk conferences ranging from Banff to Bermuda to Bay Biscayne to listen to experts and analyze their opponents, their powerful counterparts in the labor movement.

The business leaders are disturbed by labor's common cause and common direction and common goals and coordinated strategy and political success.

Slowly, corporate chief executives developed movements of their own. And now they have merged two of their effective national units into one such movement, just as the AFL and the CIO merged back in 1955.

There has been nothing like this inside the worlds of commerce and industry. Anyone who is anyone, any large corporation, many small ones, many of the industries' own house intellectuals and some borrowed, for example, from the prestigious University of Pennsylvania Wharton School of Business, are in this new businessmen's federation.

Soon enough this phenomenon will pour a new acronym into the alphabet soup -- BRT – the Business Roundtable. It is a mix of the Construction Users Anti-Inflation Roundtable, headed by U. S. Steel's former chairman of the board, Roger Blough, and something with a low visilibity, the Labor Law Study Committee.

In this new management movement will be some 140 corporations -- not be be confused with trade associations. This is not a marketing and off-to-tax - exempt- conventions - we-go sort of operation. It is a movement.

"In it will be the leaders of such corporations as AT&T, General Motors, General Electric, you name it," says one of its driving forces, who has managed to get to the golf links with labor leaders such as the Teamsters' Frank Fitzsimmons and George Meany. "They'll all be here, the auto companies, the oil firms, the metals, Alcoa, the can outfits, a couple of the big railroads, some of the country's biggest banks, the aerosapce 'crowd,' and an insurance business or two.

"This is a blue-ribbon performance. It is across the board. We're not out to get labor, though the smoke will rise from that camp against us soon enough. We're set to compete. We're set to lobby as they do. We're set to get to the public through our subcommittees. We're set to try to compete for the staffing of government agencies just as Goerge (Meany) and Fitz do. And why not?"

Nor will the "Roundtable" have to be czar-sized. There will be a 15-man policy committee; a 10-man executive council; a national chairman, William Murphy, former president and chief executive officer of Campbell Soup; and two co-chairmen, General Electric's Fred Borch and Roger Blough who has stirred a U. S. President or two in his time.

Objectives? Those who are the main spirits of the new management movement (some six years in the merging) say they want to match labor's power at the bargaining table. Or get some new laws. Especially they want to end public welfare and food stamps for strikers. This, they say, soon will cost about a million dollars a day without including the railroads.

Their study reportedly indicates that the 1959-60 steel strike cost the public some $45 million in relief to the strikers. And a decade later GE strikers received some $25 million in relief (food stamps, unemployement insurance, etc.), and during the 1972 General Motors strike, $30 million.

There are state laws which provide unemployment insurance. New York pays strikers full jobless insurance after seven weeks, Rhode Island immediately, and Michigan even if one strikes, gets another job for a short time and then is laid off or fired.

This, say the Business Roundtable specialists, has changed the balance of power in strikes. Of course, there is a full agenda of Federal legislation the Roundtable wants, as developed by the former Labor Law Reform group.

This Roundtable will take the offensive through four special task forces -- Economic Studies, Government Relations, Litigation on Labor-Management Cases, and Public Information.

Their offensive will aim at labor's strategy called "Coalition Bargaining," a high council formed by 10 to 12 unions for a special assault on a company or industry (expected to be used against GE next year). There will be a drive to neutralize the power of the union hiring hall, which supplies all manpower on a unionized project. Or to ease the obtaining of court injunctions against unions striking though there is a no-strike clause in the contract.

These are old objectives. But the merger is a new thrust. The management movement is broadening its scope. There will be closer coordination, wider participation, greater emphasis on capitalist unity of action, not as a class but as a dedication to greater Productivity and profits for greater distribution and expansion.

And greater "chief executive involvement." The labor chiefs may find the competition keen at the 19th hole.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON-- One of the biggest prizes seized during the Indian raid on government files was a memo written by Vice President Agnew to Interior Secretary Rogers Morton on behalf of a banking tycoon.

The banker, George Olmsted, wants to establish an American Indian National Bank which would have outlets on the major reservations. Agnew, before becoming Vice President, was a director of an Olmsted bank.

The story of Agnew's intervention to help Olmsted start an Indian banking operation has been dug out of the looted files by the angry Indians who occupied and then sacked the Bureau of Indian Affairs building. They escaped with thousands of government documents.

Among them are letters and memos showing that Olmsted approached the Vice President in 1970 about starting the Indians in the banking business. Olmsted offered not only to put up $1 million to launch the bank but also to train the Indians to run it themselves.

He agreed to hold the stock in escrow for the Indians until they could accumulate enough money to take over the ownership as well. All Olmsted wants out of it is a modest management fee and a share of the profits for his banking combine.

The Vice President passed on the proposal to Morton in a memo dated August 6, 1970. "Attached," wrote Agnew, "is a letter from General George Olmsted, Chairman and President of the International Bank of Washington, wherein he sets forth a proposal for the creation of an American Indian National Bank.

"It would appear to me that this idea has considerable merit and that it would be desirable for an appropriate person in the Federal government to explore fully with General Olmsted this concept."

The Vice President added carefully: "In view of my previous business connections with General Olmsted's group, I do not feel it appropriate or me to become personally involved in this matter. However, I do feel it has sufficient merit to have full and complete consideration by the Federal government...."

Despite Agnew's reservations about becoming "personally involved," his office has continued to press for the project within the federal establishment. The Bureau of Indian Affairs, in response, has put together a task force of Indian leaders to form the bank.

At Olmsted's request, the Vice President is also preparing to ask the Office of Minority Business to help out the bank with a federal grant. But he refused another request from Olmsted to intervene with the Comptroller of the Currency to get a national charter for the bank.

Olmsted told us the proposed bank will bring financial benefits to low-income Indians who have been unable to borrow money in the past. It's part of his concept of banking for the "little people," he siad. A spokesman for the Vice President stressed that the bank is precisely the sort of self- help that President Nixon has sought for the Indians. "We have done everything we could to assistthis project," the spokesman said.

Agnew has taken the lead inside the Nixon Administration in seeking better housing for the Indians. He has also tried to establish a special counsel, free of the Justice Department's jurisdiction, who would fight for Indian legal rights.

Footnote: Other government documents, now in Indian hands, confirm our earlier columns that white exploiters have cheated the Indians out of their water rights in arid areas of the West.

MILITARY POLLUTION

The Navy was selling restricted, mislabeled DDT on the pesticide market in Hawaii and the Army was washing dangerous poisons into the soil in California until the Environmental Protection Agency intervened.

In Hawaii, vacationing EPA inspector Robert Kaneshiro and Hawaii state agriculture experts discovered the Navy was selling mislabeled, five-gallon pails of surplus DDT. They alerted EPA's regional office in San Francisco and the Navy sheepishly withdrew the highly restricted bug killer from the market.

Meanwhile, surplus chemicals from the wind- down of the Vietnam War were delivered at the Sierra Army Depot in California. Hugh trucks brought in loads of DDT, diazinon, malathion, parathion and a hazardous inventory of industrial solvents and other poisons.

Asian officials reportedly refused to let the Army bury the pollutants anywhere in Asia and the Navy objected to dumping them at sea. So the Army brought vast numbers of drums of surplus poisons home in huge steel boxes. By the time they reached the Sierra depot, some containers were broken or leaking. DDT was sloshing around in trucks and poisonous crystalline deposits were caked at the breaks.

Although the depot is located on porous sand which drains directly into the water table, the Army washed some DDT from the containers into the desert. Some solvents were also buried. Again, the EPA intervened, notifying Army environmentalists who issued Sierra cease and desist orders.

At the depot, Col. Skinner Anderson, the commander, admitted to my associate Les Whitten that small quantities of DDT and a solvent had been discharged into the soil. But he denied that there was any large- scale pollution from the chemicals.

NEW YORK (AP) — Christmas is memorable because of what you don't get as well as what you don't want.

I'd like my Christmas made more memorable this year that way — by what I don't get.

It isn't that I lack the yuletide spirit. I love to get a present I can use — such as a pair of warm gloves, size 10, a conservative shirt with a regular collar, size 16½-33, or a half dozen linen handkerchiefs, large nose size.

But it is a problem for me to get things I can't use — such as a pen stand with a broken imitation marble base, an inflatable two-man plastic submarine, or a copy of the Venus de Milo done in anthracite coal.

For one thing, they are usually too big to throw down the apartment house incinerator. For another thing, you can't give them away easily. If you get a gift that isn't useful to you, the odds are that it won't be useful to anyone else you know.

In the old days you could palm off these gifts on the janitor, and he would feign a look of gratitude. But not today. Most apartment house superintendents, as they are now called, aren't so easily gulled into hauling such debris away. Many refuse to accept a present of any kind from a tenant unless it is wrapped with a $10 bill, and that's a pretty stiff price to pay jut to dispose of something someone has foisted on you in the name of seasonal good will. One wonders why so many people go to so much trouble to buy things for other people that no one on earth could possibly find joy, use or gratitude in. Could Christmas be schizophrenic? Are people unconsciously trying to punish rather than reward each other?

So, whoever you are, if you've decided to send me something for Christmas, don't make it a portrait of Adolf Hitler in needlepoint, an album of nude Santa Claus sketches or a framed crayon drawing made by your grandchild, the one who is flunking in kindergarten.

And even if you've decided to be big about it and send me a new sports car, be sure it has whitewall tires or you'll get it back by return freight.

Call me churlish if you will, but I don't want to get any more things I don't want.

TO GIVE THANKS 351 YEARS AFTER THAT FIRST OCCASION

Our harvest being gotten in, our governor sent four men on fowling, that so we might after a more special manner rejoice together, after we had gathered the fruit of our labors. They four in one day killed as much fowl as, with a little help beside, served the company almost a week. At which time ... many of the Indians coming among us ... with whom for three days we entertained and feasted.

Thus wrote the Pilgrim, Edward Winslow, of that first Thanksgiving Day in 1621. The little settlement on the edge of North America was fresh from a continent torn by political strife and religious hatred, and their own England soon would be embroiled in a civil war of religious overtones along with the struggle between king and Parliament.

The colonies and later the United States would escape none of the sorrows that infected the Old World, for men carry the viruses of their self-made tribulations wherever they go. Just as they take with them the qualities of hope, generosity, compassion and faith.

On the new continent these elements of the human equation, both the greedy and the sublime, would flourish at a fantastic rate of acceleration. Along with slavery would come the will to end it in the midst of a national cataclysm. The enormous natural resources would be used for the benefit of millions, but the land would be stripped and exploited unmercifully. (If the Indians could have known what lay ahead, they would have declined that Thanksgiving invitation.) The ugly characteristics of prejudice, distrust, selfishness and unreasoning fear would not vanish in the New World, and sometimes they would be amplified. But men and women would build and nurture institutions of government, society and religion designed to promote the welfare of all the freedom of the individual.

The political and economic power that arose from the efforts of those Old World voyagers early in the 17th Century is of a magnitude unimaginable to the greatest princes living then. Three hundred and fifty-one years after that first Thanksgiving the wealth and strength of the United States are beyond anything existing in the old nations as they have evolved in modern times.

Yet the essence of the day does not really call for giving thanks for the gross national product. It is, instead, a time to pray that this country can use its strength and wealth in the interests of peace and justice. It is a time to remember those who are gone with a special fondness. It is, as Edward Winslow wrote three and one-half centuries ago, a time for special rejoicing together, and to take new faith that the good in man's dual nature will prevail. The meaning of that first and this latest Thanksgiving remains the same.

"I WANT PURE AIR AND WATER, AND A SAFE COUNTRY,
BUT LET SOMEBODY ELSE
PAY FOR IT"

"Industrial waste (and my wife's washing machine) foul rivers and lakes, but I refuse to pay higher prices for everything, just to have elaborate treatment plants.

"They say strip-mining defaces the countryside and therefore should be stopped. But don't try raising the price I pay for coal.

"I hate smoke-stack smog, but I won't have one of those nuclear power plants in my city!

"If they raise the price of my automobile to install some anti-pollution device, I'll get one of those cheaper foreign makes, and let Detroit's jobs go hang.

"Military service? ME? Get a volunteer army — but don't raise my taxes to pay those fellows any civilian pay scale. Haven't they got any patroitism?

"No, sir! Let the government pay for it".

But — who is the government? Why, we taxpayers, of course.

NEW YORK (AP) — Christmas is memorable because of what you don't get as well as what you don't want.

I'd like my Christmas made more memorable this year that way — by what I don't get.

It isn't that I lack the yuletide spirit. I love to get a present I can use — such as a pair of warm gloves, size 10, a conservative shirt with a regular collar, size 16½-33, or a half dozen linen handkerchiefs, large nose size.

But it is a problem for me to get things I can't use — such as a pen stand with a broken imitation marble base, an inflatable two-man plastic submarine, or a copy of the Venus de Milo done in anthracite coal.

For one thing, they are usually too big to throw down the apartment house incinerator. For another thing, you can't give them away easily. If you get a gift that isn't useful to you, the odds are that it won't be useful to anyone else you know.

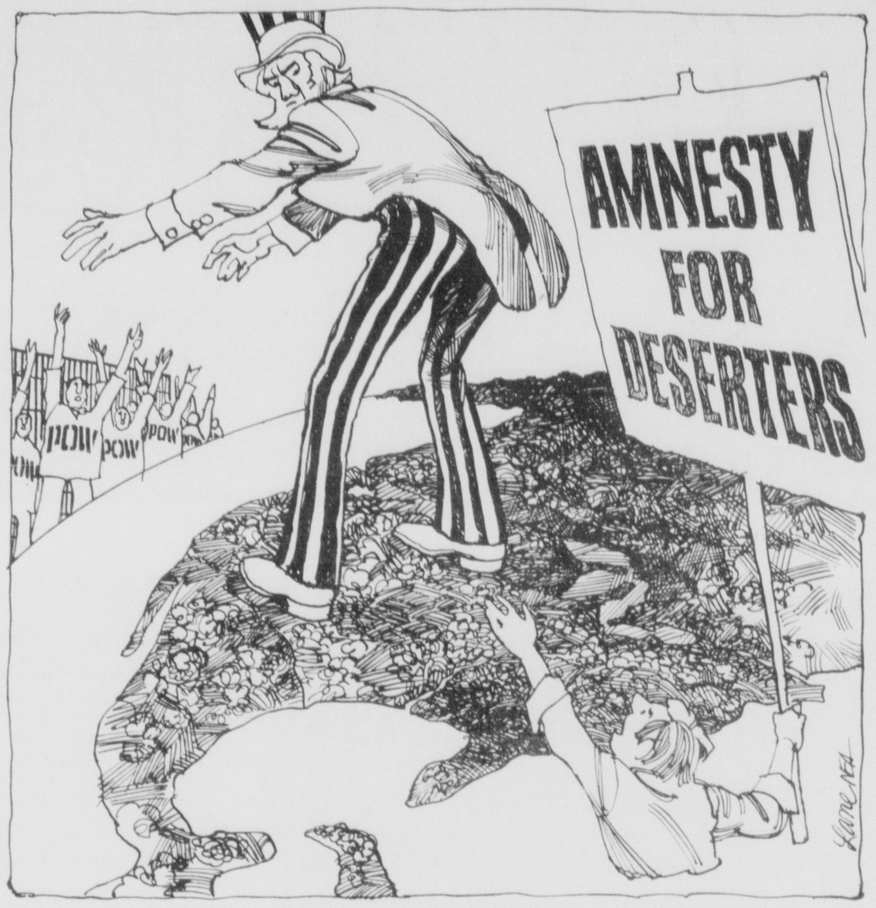

In the old days you could palm off these gifts on the janitor, and he would feign a look of gratitude. But not today. Most apartment house superintendents, as they are now called, aren't so easily gulled into hauling such debris away. Many refuse to accept a present of any kind from a tenant unless it is wrapped with a $10 bill, and that's a pretty stiff price to pay jut to dispose of something someone has foisted on you in the name of seasonal good will. One wonders why so many people go to so much trouble to buy things for other people that no one on earth could possibly find joy, use or gratitude in. Could Christmas be schizophrenic? Are people unconsciously trying to punish rather than reward each other?

So, whoever you are, if you've decided to send me something for Christmas, don't make it a portrait of Adolf Hitler in needlepoint, an album of nude Santa Claus sketches or a framed crayon drawing made by your grandchild, the one who is flunking in kindergarten.

And even if you've decided to be big about it and send me a new sports car, be sure it has whitewall tires or you'll get it back by return freight.

Call me churlish if you will, but I don't want to get any more things I don't want.

"Hey! Gimme a Hand, Will Ya?"

FINGER POSTS

One day Thomas Edison was called upon to send a message to a young people's gathering, and this is the message he sent:

"Always be interested in whatever you undertake, or may be doing for the moment. Dismiss from your minds everything else but the one thing you are doing at the time, and think only of that thing in all its bearings, and master it. Don't mind the clock, but keep at it, and let nature indicate the necessity of rest. After resting, go to work again with the same interest. The world pays big prices for the man who knows.

"To accomplish things, there must first be an idea that the thing is possible; then the watchword must be to try; and keep on trying with enthusiasm and a thorough belief in your ability to succeed. If you are convinced that a certain thing can be done, never mind what the world says; experiment, and never give up.

"Forget entirely the word disappointment. Failures, so called, are but finger posts pointing out the right direction to those who are willing to learn. So far as I can see, these principles have influenced me in the years that have passed."

Most streets in our American cities run north and south or east and west, and the dwellings are built to face them. Hygienists and exponents of vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin, say this was a boner in planning. Houses built to face northeast, southeast, southwest, or northwest get some direct sunlight on all four sides sometime during the day.

A TICKLER

This clever little story has been in print a number of times, but the details are soon forgotten, and then it becomes new again. The funny thing about it is that if you tell the story to three different people, you are likely to get three different answers:

A man went into a repair shop with an impaired vaccuum cleaner. He waited until the job was finished, and being told that it would cost a dollar, handed the repairman a five- dollar bill. The latter was unable to make the change, so the customer ssid:

"I haven't another cent, and I must take the cleaner back with me. Let me have a dollar and I'll come back for the bill tomorrow."

The repairman consented, took the five- dollar bill, and handed the customer a dollar and the cleaner. The following day the man returned, gave the repairman four dollars and received his five- dollar bill back.

Was this a profitable transaction for the repairman?

CAPTAIN OF THE SHIP

The first days of the sea voyage had been calm. The warm rays of the sun smiled down upon the placid ripples of a peaceful ocean, and at night the soft moon touched the limpid waters with shimmering silver. On board the great transatlantic liner the passengers relaxed and enjoyed life as only those experiencing an ocean voyage can do. All was calm, peaceful, serene.

And then, with little warning, a storm struck; the calm sea was transformed into a raging maelstrom; the wind howled and hissed; the great ship tossed about in the merciless sea as though it had been a plaything. Upon every hand the screaming winds of the tempest lashed with fury, churning the ocean into foam and striking terror into the hearts of passengers aboard the liner. Cowering in their staterooms, fear- smitten and nervous, they were afraid of the peril that surrounded them, for they were so helpless in the merciless hand of the howling storm.

All but one.

In a sheltered recess of the deck which afforded protection from the fury of the storm, a little boy was laying with calm concentration as though unaware that a tempest was battering the ship.

Passengers, gazing out through the portholes of their staterooms, feared for the safety of the little boy, and at length one passenger, deeply concerned, called to the lad above the sound of the howling winds: "Son, aren't you afraid of the storm? Don't you think you should come inside the ship?"

Looking up momentarily, and smiling, the boy replied, "Oh, no, sir, I'm not afraid. You see, my father is the captain of this ship!"

THE CUSTOM of lifting the hat when meeting another person dates back to the time when men wore heavy suits of armor, of which the helmet was an important part. To raise or take off this article of dress was a sign that the one doing so trusted the person present at the time, for taking off the helmet left the head unprotected, and was done only in the presence of friends. From this origin the custom gradually extended to that of removing the hat only when greeting ladies, when in the presence of one's country's flag, at funerals, and when entering churches.

Hidden Problems In Legalized Pot

A growing chorus of prestigious voices is calling for a change in this country's legal posture toward marijuana.

Dr. Bertram S. Brown, director of the National Institute of Mental Health and officially the nation's top psychiatrist, urges that penalties be eased. While deploring the spreading use of marijuana among the very young, he argues that penalties for possession and use of the drug are "much too severe and much out of keeping with knowledge about its harmfulness."

We are still several years away from being able to judge the long-term psychological and physical effects of marijuana use, but almost every study has shown that for everything bad that can be said about pot, worse things can be said about alcohol.

John H. Finlator, retired deputy director of the Bureau of Narcotics andDangerous Drugs, calls the prosecution of marijuana users "just as wrong as hell." He says his opinion was muzzled while he was with the bureau.

The 13-member National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse, appointed by Congress in 1970, is expected to recommend that possession and use of marijuana in the home be made legal. The panel will make its final report in late March.

None of these authorities advocates the complete legalization of marijuana. Yet if recent history in the field of pornography is any guide, it is difficult to see how this can long be avoided once the first step is taken toward acceptance of marijuana.

When courts held that a person had a constitutional right to provate possession of pornographic materials, the next logical argument was that this right was meaningless if he did not also have a constitutional right to obtain such materials. Since the courts have so far failed to face this issue squarely, pornography has virtually become legal by default.

Suppose marijuana were legalized across the board. We could find ourselves with some unforeseen problems, says Cleveland chemist Donald J. Nittskoff, who runs the only federally licensed experimental narcotics laboratory in Ohio.

First, he says, when we talk about making marijuana legal, we should ask ourselves: Legal for whom? Only for adults over 18? Yet, according to a recent report by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, marijuana use has already risen to as high as 90 per cent among some groups of high school students.

Second, the mild marijuana generally obtainable in this country contains only about 1 per cent of THC (tetrahydrocannabinol), the psychoactive constituent . The more potent hashish contains about 5 to 8 per cent.

Nittskoff thinks legalization of marijuana could open the door to increasingly more potent pot as manufacturers competed for sales. Even if THC content were limited by law, an illegal market for the more powerful stuff could be generated.

Alcohol, for instance, is legal and stringently regulated, yet thate is still a moonshine industry (although in this case the object is to avoid taxes).

Nittskoff raises a third point no one else has mentioned. The United States has treaty obligations with other nations for the suppression of the drug traffic. A treaty, ratified by the Senate, is as much the law of the land as a law passed by Congress and signed by the President.

Thus changes in national or state laws regarding marijuana could bring us into conflict with international law to which we are signatories.

The problem of pot, either in its legal or medical aspects, is far from being a simple and straight-forward matter.

TRIAL BY FIRE

Engineer James Halcomb developed a unique "slide-rule computer" that can be used by those familiar with the PERT and CPM concepts of programming. He put it on the market (with complete instructional guides) at $24.50.

Selling by direct mail was successful but response was slow. He was curious as to what might happen if the Pert-O-Graph were exposed to a wider audience. So a mail-order ad was prepared with long copy (8 pt. type) and a coupon. It was placed in Business Week for a one-shot trial. This was a new concept being introduced to an unfamiliar market.

Within a few weeks, the ad pulled in prepaid orders in excess of $20,000. A re-run of the same ad one year later again brought in more, than $20,000 in cash-on-the - line returns. Jim Halcomb says: "The dollar figures speak for themselves.

POLITICAL ANARCHY

It was nine years ago this month that the sniper bullets of a man hidden in a virtually empty building in downtown Dallas ended the life of a relatively young man who had reached the summit of political power. A shocked, bereaved world heard the news on November 22, 1963, that President John F. Kennedy had been murdered. Friend and critic alike mourned his death.

The true story of his murder may or may not have been told. Many feel that a conspiracy was responsible. Whatever the truth of their allegations, it is a matter of record that the shame and disgrace of political violence did not end with the death of President Kennedy. His brother, Senator Robert Kennedy, was later gunned down in Los Angeles and Governor George Wallace recently was shot and critically wounded. All of these odious incidents are a sad commentary on our society.

Political assassinations and assaults are not really new in the history of mankind, but their occurrence in a modern, advanced society is perplexing. A wave of terror struck the leaders of the world around the turn of the century. The anarchists had their origins in the Balkans but their adherents spread to the far corners of the globe and all politicians and government leaders were under great strain. The murder of the Austrian archduke in Serbia triggered World War I.

The politicians of this country like to shake hands with the people and the voters should have a right to see the men and women who will lead them. Only a moral and spiritual awakening will make our political system safe and comfortable again. HLH

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON — On any clear day, at any one of a hundred rambling hotels surviving the old baronial Mauve Decade, always with golf courses attached, from Lake Louise to French Lick to Key Biscayne, one can see scores of business leaders, eagerly but futilely eyeing the links.

They usually are the chief executives of the nation's major corporations. They are from the most rarified of executive suites. And they fly to these dawn-to-dusk conferences ranging from Banff to Bermuda to Bay Biscayne to listen to experts and analyze their opponents, their powerful counterparts in the labor movement.

The business leaders are disturbed by labor's common cause and common direction and common goals and coordinated strategy and political success.

Slowly, corporate chief executives developed movements of their own. And now they have merged two of their effective national units into one such movement, just as the AFL and the CIO merged back in 1955.

There has been nothing like this inside the worlds of commerce and industry. Anyone who is anyone, any large corporation, many small ones, many of the industries' own house intellectuals and some borrowed, for example, from the prestigious University of Pennsylvania Wharton School of Business, are in this new businessmen's federation.

Soon enough this phenomenon will pour a new acronym into the alphabet soup -- BRT – the Business Roundtable. It is a mix of the Construction Users Anti-Inflation Roundtable, headed by U. S. Steel's former chairman of the board, Roger Blough, and something with a low visilibity, the Labor Law Study Committee.

In this new management movement will be some 140 corporations -- not be confused with trade associations. This is not a marketing and off-to-tax - exempt- conventions - we-go sort of operation. It is a movement.

"In it will be the leaders of such corporations as AT&T, General Motors, General Electric, you name it," says one of its driving forces, who has managed to get to the golf links with labor leaders such as the Teamsters' Frank Fitzsimmons and George Meany. "They'll all be here, the auto companies, the oil firms, the metals, Alcoa, the can outfits, a couple of the big railroads, some of the country's biggest banks, the aerosapce 'crowd,' and an insurance business or two.

"This is a blue-ribbon performance. It is across the board. We're not out to get labor, though the smoke will rise from that camp against us soon enough. We're set to compete. We're set to lobby as they do. We're set to get to the public through our subcommittees. We're set to try to compete for the staffing of government agencies just as Goerge (Meany) and Fitz do. And why not?"

Nor will the "Roundtable" have to be czar-sized. There will be a 15-man policy committee; a 10-man executive council; a national chairman, William Murphy, former president and chief executive officer of Campbell Soup; and two co-chairmen, General Electric's Fred Borch and Roger Blough who has stirred a U. S. President or two in his time.

Objectives? Those who are the main spirits of the new management movement (some six years in the merging) say they want to match labor's power at the bargaining table. Or get some new laws. Especially they want to end public welfare and food stamps for strikers. This, they say, soon will cost about a million dollars a day without including the railroads.

Their study reportedly indicates that the 1959-60 steel strike cost the public some $45 million in relief to the strikers. And a decade later GE strikers received some $25 million in relief (food stamps, unemployement insurance, etc.), and during the 1972 General Motors strike, $30 million.

There are state laws which provide unemployment insurance. New York pays strikers full jobless insurance after seven weeks, Rhode Island immediately, and Michigan even if one strikes, gets another job for a short time and then is laid off or fired.

This, say the Business Roundtable specialists, has changed the balance of power in strikes. Of course, there is a full agenda of Federal legislation the Roundtable wants, as developed by the former Labor Law Reform group.

This Roundtable will take the offensive through four special task forces -- Economic Studies, Government Relations, Litigation on Labor-Management Cases, and Public Information.

Their offensive will aim at labor's strategy called "Coalition Bargaining," a high council formed by 10 to 12 unions for a special assault on a company or industry (expected to be used against GE next year). There will be a drive to neutralize the power of the union hiring hall, which supplies all manpower on a unionized project. Or to ease the obtaining of court injunctions against unions striking though there is a no-strike clause in the contract.

These are old objectives. But the merger is a new thrust. The management movement is broadening its scope. There will be closer coordination, wider participation, greater emphasis on capitalist unity of action, not as a class but as a dedication to greater Productivity and profits for greater distribution and expansion.

And greater "chief executive involvement." The labor chiefs may find the competition keen at the 19th hole.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON-- One of the biggest prizes seized during the Indian raid on government files was a memo written by Vice President Agnew to Interior Secretary Rogers Morton on behalf of a banking tycoon.

The banker, George Olmsted, wants to establish an American Indian National Bank which would have outlets on the major reservations. Agnew, before becoming Vice President, was a director of an Olmsted bank.

The story of Agnew's intervention to help Olmsted start an Indian banking operation has been dug out of the looted files by the angry Indians who occupied and then sacked the Bureau of Indian Affairs building. They escaped with thousands of government documents.

Among them are letters and memos showing that Olmsted approached the Vice President in 1970 about starting the Indians in the banking business. Olmsted offered not only to put up $1 million to launch the bank but also to train the Indians to run it themselves.

He agreed to hold the stock in escrow for the Indians until they could accumulate enough money to take over the ownership as well. All Olmsted wants out of it is a modest management fee and a share of the profits for his banking combine.

The Vice President passed on the proposal to Morton in a memo dated August 6, 1970. "Attached," wrote Agnew, "is a letter from General George Olmsted, Chairman and President of the International Bank of Washington, wherein he sets forth a proposal for the creation of an American Indian National Bank.

"it would appear to me that this idea has considerable merit and that it would be desirable for an appropriate person in the Federal government to explore fully with General Olmsted this concept."

The Vice President added carefully: "In view of my previous business connections with General Olmsted's group, I do not feel it appropriate or me to become personally involved in this matter. However, I do feel it has sufficient merit to have full and complete consideration by the Federal government...."

Despite Agnew's reservations about becoming "personally involved," his office has continued to press for the project within the federal establishment. The Bureau of Indian Affairs, in response, has put together a task force of Indian leaders to form the bank.

At Olmsted's request, the Vice President is also preparing to ask the Office of Minority Business to help out the bank with a federal grant. But he refused another request from Olmsted to intervene with the Comptroller of the Currency to get a national charter for the bank.

Olmsted told us the proposed bank will bring financial benefits to low-income Indians who have been unable to borrow money in the past. It's part of his concept of banking for the "little people," he siad. A spokesman for the Vice President stressed that the bank is precisely the sort of self- help that President Nixon has sought for the Indians. "We have done everything we could to assistthis project," the spokesman said.

Agnew has taken the lead inside the Nixon Administration in seeking better housing for the Indians. He has also tried to establish a special counsel, free of the Justice Department's jurisdiction, who would fight for Indian legal rights.

Footnote: Other government documents, now in Indian hands, confirm our earlier columns that white exploiters have cheated the Indians out of their water rights in arid areas of the West.

MILITARY POLLUTION

The Navy was selling restricted, mislabeled DDT on the pesticide market in Hawaii and the Army was washing dangerous poisons into the soil in California until the Environmental Protection Agency intervened.

In Hawaii, vacationing EPA inspector Robert Kaneshiro and Hawaii state agriculture experts discovered the Navy was selling mislabeled, five-gallon pails of surplus DDT. They alerted EPA's regional office in San Francisco and the Navy sheepishly withdrew the highly restricted bug killer from the market.

Meanwhile, surplus chemicals from the wind- down of the Vietnam War were delivered at the Sierra Army Depot in California. Hugh trucks brought in loads of DDT, diazinon, malathion, parathion and a hazardous inventory of industrial solvents and other poisons.

Asian officials reportedly refused to let the Army bury the pollutants anywhere in Asia and the Navy objected to dumping them at sea. So the Army brought vast numbers of drums of surplus poisons home in huge steel boxes. By the time they reached the Sierra depot, some containers were broken or leaking. DDT was sloshing around in trucks and poisonous crystalline deposits were caked at the breaks.

Although the depot is located on porous sand which drains directly into the water table, the Army washed some DDT from the containers into the desert. Some solvents were also buried. Again, the EPA intervened, notifying Army environmentalists who issued Sierra cease and desist orders.

At the depot, Col. Skinner Anderson, the commander, admitted to my associate Les Whitten that small quantities of DDT and a solvent had been discharged into the soil. But he denied that there was any large- scale pollution from the chemicals.

Missouri Teachers May Be Out Of NEA

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The executive committee of the National Education Association has told the Missouri State Teachers Association (MSTA) that it has failed to comply with a unification plan.

The MSTA faces the prospect of disaffiliation from the national organization unless the MSTA can convince the executive committee at a hearing to accept the Missouri plan, Thomas Penn, new executive secretary of the MSTA, said by phone from San Diego, where the NEA is holding its annual convention.

"We have not been disaffiliated," Penn said. The date of the hearing had not been set.

The controversy involves the NEA's order that by last Sept. 1, all state associations present a plan whereby all NEA members would belong to a local teachers association, the state group and the NEA. A member would have to belong to all three groups.

Missouri's plan was turned down at a state meeting in Kansas City.

A charge was brought in San Diego to the executive committee by Mrs. Pat O'Brien of Fristoe, Mo., a member of the NEA board of directors, Penn said.

The MSTA then was ordered to show cause why it should not be disaffiliated.

The MSTA has 50,000 members, and the NEA has 17,000 members in Missouri.

Cothern Fined In Court; Chickens Prove Expensive

Jack Cothern, 844 Agnes, has been keeping some of the most expensive chickens in the world.

In City Court Wednesday, Cothern was fined $14 and court costs for keeping three of them within city limits. He had appeared in court before for having four of them in his back yard, but charges were dropped on payment of court costs after he promised to remove them.

The case against John Costello of Jon Don Acres trailer court was dismissed. He was charged with driving while intoxicated on Oct. 29. Costello was killed Nov. 8 in an accident on Interstate 55 when his pickup truck was rammed from behind and caught fire.

Robert Allen Jones, 614 William St., was given a 90-day suspended sentence on charges of displaying a dangerous and deadly weapon. Another count of displaying a weapon and two counts of assault and battery were dismissed.

Charleston Building Sites Now Must Have Water Meter Put In

CHARLESTON — All new construction within the city limits must have installed, at the constructor's expense, one of three acceptable water meters, according to a motion approved Tuesday night by the City Council.

City Attorney W. Clifton Banta Sr. was instructed to prepare an amendment to a present ordinance for adoption at the next council meeting.

A resolution naming three areas for annexation to the city limits was approved. The areas include the north side of Goodin Avenue and the west side of North Main Road to the county road; property near the Interstate 57 east interchange and a portion of land near South Main, adjoining Interstate 57.

A request from City Manager Richard Martin to advertise a list of unpaved streets for the 1973 street paving program was granted.

Martin also requested and was granted permission to apply for a 30-day loan in the amount of $15,000 from Citizens Bank of Charleston for industrial park improvements. The city will be reimbursed by the Economic Development Agency.

A committee composed of Councilmen Sam Story and Dr. Lowell Nicholas was appointed by Mayor Charles Williams to select the subjects for six paintings for the city hall.

The entry of Miss Lou Carson, submitted in the contest for a slogan for the approaching Charleston signs, was selected by the council. Miss Carson's slogan was "Approaching Charleston, home of the Dogwood-Azalea Tour". One sign will feature a dogwood tree and the other an azalea.

Requests for trailer permits were granted Robert Marshall and Louis Mor. A third request from George Henson was not approved as his property is in the Neighborhood Development Program.

The council approved assignment of the city's option on property for an airport over to the county.

A license for the sale of mixed drinks was approved for Carl Meyers, new manager of the Storming Bull on West Marshall St. Joker Warren, who was granted a license for the establishment last month, has relinquished his license.

Missouri Teachers May Be Out Of NEA

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The executive committee of the National Education Association has told the Missouri State Teachers Association (MSTA) that it has failed to comply with a unification plan.

The MSTA faces the prospect of disaffiliation from the national organization unless the MSTA can convince the executive committee at a hearing to accept the Missouri plan, Thomas Penn, new executive secretary of the MSTA, said by phone from San Diego, where the NEA is holding its annual convention.

"We have not been disaffiliated," Penn said. The date of the hearing had not been set.

The controversy involves the NEA's order that by last Sept. 1, all state associations present a plan whereby all NEA members would belong to a local teachers association, the state group and the NEA. A member would have to belong to all three groups.

Missouri's plan was turned down at a state meeting in Kansas City.

A charge was brought in San Diego to the executive committee by Mrs. Pat O'Brien of Fristoe, Mo., a member of the NEA board of directors, Penn said.

The MSTA then was ordered to show cause why it should not be disaffiliated.

The MSTA has 50,000 members, and the NEA has 17,000 members in Missouri.

TALLAPOOSA— The Tallapoosa Baptist Women met Monday at the home of Mrs. W.M. Fortner for their mission program and observation of World Day of Prayer programs.

Ann Landers

One Night Out Can't Hurt Anyone

Dear Ann Landers: May I speak in behalf of a persecuted minority that has been discriminated against for years, but no one takes up our cause? I am talking about "The Boss's Daughter."

We are supposed to know everything about the business including what is going to happen in advance, because we are The Boss's Daughter.

We are expected to come in early and stay late if there is anything that needs to be done. No overtime, of course--- because we are The Boss's Daughter.

We may not leave for a dental or doctor appointment or for any of the legitimate reasons the other employees take off for--- because we are The Boss's Daughter.

We are not included in office talk or any of the fun things that happen--- because we are The Boss's Daughter.

If we make a mistake we get twice as much heat from our superiors and then when we get home at night we get more of the same--- because we are The Boss's Daughter.

Sign Me, Fed Up--- Because I Am The Boss's Daughter.

Dear Fed: An employee who has as many complaints as you can't be very effective.

Furthermore, no girl would stay with a job she hates so thoroughly unless she was darned sure she couldn't do better someplace else-- not even The Boss's Daughter.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married 24 years. We have four good children. The youngest is 6.

Ten years ago Tom was promoted from machine operator to foreman. A few years later he was made assistant superintendent. Last year he was made superintendent. Now Tom says the reason he got those promotions was because he gets along well with the men. What he wants is one night out of a week to enjoy male companionship. He says I should play cards with the girls.

This week he informed me that all our friends are beginning to look old--- everyone but him, that is. (He is 45.) He says the reason he looks so good is because I have never nagged him and if I know what's good for me I won't start now.

I don't mind Tom going hunting and fishing and golfing, but I don't like this one- night- a- week- out. He usually is home by midnight. Shall I agree? Chippewa Falls

Dear Chip: My advice is for you to get a card game, or a bowling group, and have your night out, too. Insist that your husband keep his curfew. Make this the bargaining point. The alternative is a weekly battle and you'll lose every time.

Dear Ann Landers: Two months ago I moved out of the house into my own apartment and started to smoke grass. I got into a conversation with my girl friend's mother and was informed that people who smoke grass run the risk of having children who are slow learners, or worse.

This scared me so I quit. It's been twelve days since I have had a joint. I've been talking to many of my friends who are still puffers, trying to get some facts. No one has heard about this slow- learner stuff. When I went back and asked my future mother- in-law to show me something by an authority, she said, "I don't think I should have to."

Is smoking grass any more harmful than smoking ordinary cigarets? Will it have harmful effects on my unborn children?--- Concerned About The Future

Dear Concerned: One of the principal reasons I advise against all mind- altering agents is that we do not yet know the effects it may produce over a period of several years. So far there are no definitive findings on the question you have asked--- either pro or con. We DO know, however, that cigaret smoking women have more frequent miscarriages than women who do not smoke.

What kind of wedding goes with today's new life styles? Does anything go? Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" tells what's right for today's weddings. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope (16c postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Southern Division All-Conference

The Southern Division champion Dexter Bearcats came in second in the all-conference selections made by the coaches of the league last weekend for Southeast Missouri daily newspapers.

Portageville claimed 14 places on the four teams selected, while DHS athletes took up 11 slots.

Coach Clyde Vaughn's Bearcats did, however, lead first-team selections with nine players named. The Cats put six players on the first-team offensive unit and three on the defense but got only two players named to second teams, both to the second unit defense.

PHS put seven players on each of the first and second teams with three players being named to both the first and second team offensive squads and four players each on the first and second defensive units.

Only eight underclassmen were singled out for honors, two of those being sophomores from the Malden Green Waves.

Farris Stars At MSU

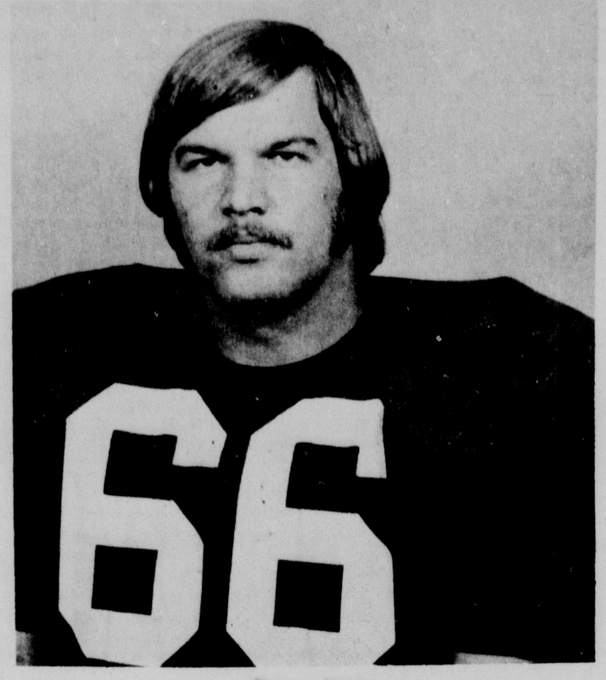

MURRAY, Ky. — When he was in high school, Bruce Farris of Sikeston, Mo., had hopes of being drafted by a professional baseball team. However, with his first "love" being football, Farris' hopes of playing professional baseball were dampened when he signed a grant-in-aid with Murray State University to play football.

A three-year letterman in baseball at Sikeston High School, Farris was scouted heavily by the "pros" for his pitching ability. "Playing professional baseball is something I had always wanted to do," Farris said, "But when I signed with Murray, the scouts shyed away." I've been happy though and have no regrets whatsoever in coming to Murray. The people have been great."

Murray State certainly has no regrets and has been pleased with Farris' performance this year. So far this season, Farris has made 66 tackles, ranking him third on the Racer team. He's also been credited with 26 assists, three fumble recoveries, one pass interception, and one blocked extra point attempt.

Farris was recruited as a quarterback and was the starting signal caller on the Murray freshman team.

In the spring of his freshman season, he was moved from quarterback to the defensive team as a middle linebacker. "I jumpted at the chance to play defense because I enjoy the contact," Farris said. "It's just that now I have to get ready physically for the contact and as a quarterback I had to get ready mentally."

Bruce Farris

Farris began his sophomore season as a starting middle guard, but in the second game he dislocated a shoulder and was out of action the rest of the season.

With his shoulder still plaguing him the next year, coaches found it necessary to red-shirt the 6-2, 225-pound athlete.

This season in his junior year of eligibility, Farris has almost fully recovered from his shoulder injury. Murray defensive coach Bill Hina says, "Bruce is still bothered some with that shoulder injury but you can't tell it by the way he plays. He's come up with some big plays this season and we're looking for a great season out of him next year."

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Murrie L. Farris of Sikeston. His brother John is a starting tight end on Sikeston High's football team.

Southern Division All-Conference

The Southern Division champion Dexter Bearcats came in second in the all-conference selections made by the coaches of the league last weekend for Southeast Missouri daily newspapers.

Portageville claimed 14 places on the four teams selected, while DHS athletes took up 11 slots.

Coach Clyde Vaughn's Bearcats did, however, lead first-team selections with nine players named. The Cats put six players on the first-team offensive unit and three on the defense but got only two players named to second teams, both to the second unit defense.

PHS put seven players on each of the first and second teams with three players being named to both the first and second team offensive squads and four players each on the first and second defensive units.

Only eight underclassmen were singled out for honors, two of those being sophomores from the Malden Green Waves.

Sooners Return To Sugar

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Oklahoma will return to defend its Sugar Bowl title New Years Eve night against Penn State, an Eastern power making its first appearance in the Sugar Bowl classic.

The Associated Press learned of the matchup Wednesday, although it cannot be announced officially until Saturday afternoon because of National Collegiate Athletic Association rules.

Fourth-ranked Oklahoma is 71 for the season—the loss was to Colorado—with Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma State still ahead.

Sixth-ranked Penn State is 81, having won eight straight since a 28-21 loss to Tennessee in the Nittany Lions' season opener.

Oklahoma's wishbone ran wild in a 40-22 romp over Auburn in last season's Sugar Bowl while Penn State was whipping Texas 30-6 in the Cotton Bowl.

Confirmation of the Sugar Bowl match, a source close to behind-the-scene bowl negotiations told The Associated Press, makes it a virtual certainty that Nebraska will play Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl with Alabama meeting Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

Penn State, under Coach Joe Paterno, will be heavily favored in its final two games against Boston College and Pittsburgh.

Allen MVP

CHICAGO (AP) — "All I asked for when I came here was one year of peace of mind," said the American League's newly honored Most Valuable Player for 1972.

First baseman Dick Allen, his image as a moody, controversial former National League star behind him, made it plain Wednesday that finding "a home in Chicago where I reelly feel like a human being" spurred his superb AL debut with the White Sox.

A genial Allen, garbed in a maroon mod suit replete with matching boots, touched all bases—past and present—at a news conference following his landslide MVP choice by the Baseball Writers Association of America earlier in the day.

The 30-year-old Allen, who led the AL in home runs with 37 and in RBI with a career high of 113 while batting .308, modestly said "I think this is quite an honor and I hope I'm worthy of it.

"Actually, I thought Joe Rudi (outfielder for the world champion Oakland A's) would have won it. Baseball is my life, it makes me go. This wou4d mean more to me had we won the pennant."

Rudi finished a distant second in the MVP voting, with 164 points compared with Allen's 321.

Allen, completely at ease before a battery of microphones, at the start thanked the Philadelphia Phil scout, Johnny Ogden, who signed him in 1960. Ogden encouraged him "like a father", after a discouraging 1963 Phil debut, to attain NL Rookie of the Year honors in 1964 with a .318 batting average.

In between that Rookie of the Year Award and Wednesday's MVP selection, came "so many years of stories and criticism without hearing from me," Allen said of his unhappy stay with the Phils and one-year stints each with the St. Louis Cardinals and Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I came to Chicago specifically to win, but when the Dodgers traded me, I thought 'Gee, what are they doing to me,'" Allen said. "But the fans and the press made me feel really wanted. Believe me, I won't stop until Chicago has a winner."

Allen joked at the question of what salary he will demand next season after missing the entire spring training this year before signing with the Sox April 1 for an estimated $135,000.

"I don't know, how much do you have?" he tossed at the horde of interviewers, then adding: "I had hoped to talk contract on this trip, but Stu Holcomb (Sox general manager) is out of town. But I don't think it will take too much talking to sign."

Would Allen again skip spring training? Chuck Tanner, The AP's 1972 AL Manager of the Year, recently said he would chase Allen out of camp if he showed up.

"You tell me," was Allen's smiling comment.

The big step coming up in highway safety is more use of color on the roads. A big problem has been that neither asphalt nor concrete could be colored permanently. However, Monsanto Chemicals has contributed to the development of a new paving material, which is very similiar to asphalt and can be brightly tinted with long-lasting color. A strip of red would mean stop ahead; white will be used as it is now for highway dividers and shoulders; green for through lanes, orange for deceleration lanes; and yellow for prohibited areas. Safety officials already are calling for standardization of color use across the country.

Put yourself on the right road with Refined Water, the perfect cleansing agent. Because all the hardness minerals are removed with our refining unit, only a small amount of soap is needed to dislodge the soil and keep it in suspension. Your clothes will last longer, stay brighter and fluffier. "There is nothing else like it." Give us a call.

WHAT DOES NO-FAULT INSURANCE MEAN?

Perhaps you have read about No-Fault insurance. Ultimately, this will reduce the number of claims going to Court for settlement and will speed up payment of insurance claims. It is not intended to reduce the number of claims adjusters.

The U. S. Dept. of Labor states: "Employment of claims adjusters is expected to increase at a rapid rate through the 70's . . ." Adjusting is a profession of great variety and growing opportunity.

Can you qualify? Write today for a local interview giving full name, complete address, phone number, education and previous work experience.

The big step coming up in highway safety is more use of color on the roads. A big problem has been that neither asphalt nor concrete could be colored permanently. However, Monsanto Chemicals has contributed to the development of a new paving material, which is very similiar to asphalt and can be brightly tinted with long-lasting color. A strip of red would mean stop ahead; white will be used as it is now for highway dividers and shoulders; green for through lanes, orange for deceleration lanes; and yellow for prohibited areas. Safety officials already are calling for standardization of color use across the country.

Put yourself on the right road with Refined Water, the perfect cleansing agent. Because all the hardness minerals are removed with our refining unit, only a small amount of soap is needed to dislodge the soil and keep it in suspension. Your clothes will last longer, stay brighter and fluffier. "There is nothing else like it." Give us a call.

WHAT DOES NO-FAULT INSURANCE MEAN?

Perhaps you have read about No-Fault insurance. Ultimately, this will reduce the number of claims going to Court for settlement and will speed up payment of insurance claims. It is not intended to reduce the number of claims adjusters.

The U. S. Dept. of Labor states: "Employment of claims adjusters is expected to increase at a rapid rate through the 70's . . ." Adjusting is a profession of great variety and growing opportunity.

Can you qualify? Write today for a local interview giving full name, complete address, phone number, education and previous work experience.

The Standard wishes to announce that with the beginning of the New Year but one issue of the paper each week will be put out -- that on Thursday. It is with genuine regret that we make this announcement, but the lack of support from the home merchants for the past 18 months has made this step necessary.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Sensitive Girl

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Susan had the sexiest walk in town. It was so inviting, in fact, that the telephone company decided to tap her wire in order to determine whether she was using her phone for immoral purposes. All improper suspicions, however, bombed out. The wire tap clearly established that Susan's character, despite her provocative appearance, was as pure as a cake of Ivory soap.

And while this conclusion may have surprised the men down at the telephone company, it didn't compare to Susan's surprise when she discovered that strangers had been eavesdropping on her. Outraged, she sued the telephone company for her tearful humiliation and embarrassment.

"Peeping into the private lives of its subscribers," she wept in court, "is not a privilege granted to a telephone company."

"That's where you're wrong," was the answer. "A telephone is a tool of criminals and all sorts of sordid people. It's not only the duty of a telephone company to police the use of its equipment, it's the obligation of a telephone company to do so."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the telephone company pay for eavesdropping on Susan?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a person is entitled to recover for an intrusion into his or her private activities where the intrusion is of such a nature as to outrage or cause mental suffering, shame or humiliation.

(Based upon a 1961 Ohio Court of Appeals Decision)

The Prayer from the Upper Room

God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble.(James 4:6)

PRAYER: Father, help me to minimize the credit others would give me. May I see Your grace as the real thing in my life. In Jesus' name. Amen.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Sensitive Girl

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Susan had the sexiest walk in town. It was so inviting, in fact, that the telephone company decided to tap her wire in order to determine whether she was using her phone for immoral purposes. All improper suspicions, however, bombed out. The wire tap clearly established that Susan's character, despite her provocative appearance, was as pure as a cake of Ivory soap.

And while this conclusion may have surprised the men down at the telephone company, it didn't compare to Susan's surprise when she discovered that strangers had been eavesdropping on her. Outraged, she sued the telephone company for her tearful humiliation and embarrassment.

"Peeping into the private lives of its subscribers," she wept in court, "is not a privilege granted to a telephone company."

"That's where you're wrong," was the answer. "A telephone is a tool of criminals and all sorts of sordid people. It's not only the duty of a telephone company to police the use of its equipment, it's the obligation of a telephone company to do so."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the telephone company pay for eavesdropping on Susan?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a person is entitled to recover for an intrusion into his or her private activities where the intrusion is of such a nature as to outrage or cause mental suffering, shame or humiliation.

The Prayer from the Upper Room
